LEE'S VETERANS MAY COME TO AID OF GEN. SICKLES

Lawrence Wolfe, his bond clerk, and Albert Blumenfeld, his attorney, started for the Sickles home.

When he reached the Sickles home the old negro opened the door and in a moment the sheriff and his bond clerk and his lawyer and his secretary, and for quite some time messenger boys and cab drivers and men about town stood in front of the general's home, and nothing at all happened.

But this is what was going on inside: General Sickles received the sheriff in a room at the rear of the big house on the ground floor. It was a room the windows of which were shaded by heavy curtains so that no light came in from Ninth Street. The general was sitting at a mahogany desk. He was dressed in a black coat. In front of him glittered his war sword atop of the mahogany desk. The general appeared unabashed. He walked up to the veteran and said:

"I am very glad to see you, general. And I am glad to see you. Did you receive the letters I sent you—the one from Mrs. Longstreet?"

The general said that he had not received any letters from Mrs. Longstreet, and the general thrust forward a telegram. It read as follows:

Gainesville, Ga., January 24.

"My soul is sorrowed by your troubles. Am writing the Attorney-General, New York that I will raise the money among the ragged, destitute and maimed veterans who followed Lee to pay the amount demanded by New York officials will allow sufficient time to write into our history the story of degenerate descendants of heroic lives. The republic whose battles you fought will not permit your degradation."

(Signed) HELEN D. LONGSTREET.

The general remarked that this must be the widow of General Longstreet, and the general said that it was none other. Then the general drew himself up to his full height and said:

"I am sorry, but I must serve you with these papers."

The general accepted the papers which contained the announcement of his arrest in the civil action. Under those circumstances he said he would pay it. Whereupon he lifted up his voice and called, "Eddy, oh Eddy."

Miss Eleanor Wilmerding, the general's housekeeper, to whose presence in the house objection is raised by the general soon and wife, entered.

"Get somewhere," she was ordered.

While she was out Mr. Hay entered, then announced that the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company which guaranteed the general's appearance in court. The premium on the bond was $500. It is said that the general's friends raised the money. Mrs. Sickles, according to officers of the company, had nothing to do with it.

Signs With a Flourish.

All the signatures on the bond were "The Sickles." He filled in the blank space with a bold clear signature. When he had flourished to the end, he turned to the sheriff.

"How's that," he said, "for an old man of ninety-three, general?"

"Next October," said the Gettysburg veteran tersely, and then Miss Wilmerding came in with the money. She had a number of coins in her hand and in the darkness of the room she tripped. There was a shower of money. The sheriff, his bond clerk, his lawyer and secretary were bumping heads the next moment on the general's rug. Miss Wilmerding told them not to mind. They're just pennies," she asserted them, but the pennies were all retrieved. Miss Wilmerding gave the sheriff a bill, a dime and a nickel; he pocketed them, arose and said:

"My business is now ended. Good-bye to you, general. I wish you all the best in the world."

"Never had a better friend than you, general," answered the general. "If you will read the papers this morning," came back the sheriff, "you will see what kind of words I said about you."

The sheriff and his party then left. When they had rounded the corner

WINTER SHOES

Don't wait until the weather gets so thick you can't find your way to our shoe bin.

A pair of these $5 viscolized, weather-proof shoes to-day may prevent a doctor's bill to-morrow.

More colds and resultant illness come from wet feet, so the M. D.'s say, than from any other cause.

The Berry Shoe, $3.50, $4 and $5.
The Hanan, $6.50 and $7.

Special Sale of broken lots of $5 Shoes at $3.45.

TROUBLE MAKER IN STEEL TRADE

Effort to show that the witness had not been actuated in giving his testimony, considered by many as favorable to the government, by any animosity toward the steel corporation.

Mr. Corey said that he was "naturally in favor of the success of the corporation in the present suit."

The case of the government, which began in October, 1911, probably will be completed to-morrow. The taking of testimony by the defense will not be begun until after a recess to allow for calling of witnesses. These will include Judge Gary, James A. Farrell, president of the corporation, and a number of the defendants whom the government did not subpoena.

AMUSEMENTS.

Bijou—Charley Grapewin in "Between Showers," matinee and night.

Colonial—Vaudeville.

Empire—Miniature Musical Comedy.

Lubin—Vaudeville.

Charley Grapewin at the Bijou.

By sheer force of his unusual comedy methods, Charley Grapewin drew many laughs from a large audience at the Bijou last night. And this in spite of the handicap against which he struggled in the farce selected for the exploitation of his peculiar talents.

"Between Showers" was, as has been advertised, chosen from three hundred scripts submitted, one marvels what the other two hundred and ninety-nine were. Beginning with a situation capable of much amusing development, the story immediately divided into improbability and an incoherent jangle of hastily thrown together incidents quite free from any logical sequence—even of the sort of logic that prevails in farce building.

A well managed and a well acted second act supplied the only bit of natural action in the piece.

As has been suggested, however, the star managed to keep the audience amused while he was on the stage, for, fortunately, was practically all the time, and on the whole, the house seemed to enjoy the performance.

Mr. Grapewin's supporting company includes Anna Chance, who rises up to the only opportunity afforded her, which occurs in the last act, and Mike Donlin, who is some baseball player.

W. D. G. Weber and Fields Packed Norfolk Theatre Last Night.

Weber and Fields opened their Southern tour at the Academy of Music in Norfolk last night.

A telegram received by the editor of this column from Otto Wells last night conveyed the glad tidings that the famous comedians were delighting a house packed to its doors, and that, in addition to the inimitable work of the principals, the large, gorgeously costumed, perfectly drilled chorus, was proving a special feature of the performance.

American and Royal Mail lines, but insisted his company was not obligated to its competitors and could make such rates as it wished.

Robert W. Boissevain, general manager of the United Fruit Company, and Walker B. Spencer, assistant general counsel, corroborated the statements of Mr. Preston. Mr. Boissevain said that in the Caribbean trade his company usually followed the rates made by the Panama Railway and Steamship Company and that all of the companies, including the latter, kept their rates at about the same level.

Mr. Spencer recommended the pas-

Second meeting for the purpose of making arrangements for the coming annual session of the Conference for Education in the South, to be held in Richmond in April, will be had at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Capitol.

Dr. A. P. Bourland, executive secretary of the conference, arrived at the city last night and will be present at the meeting this afternoon.

Among the members of the committee arranging for the entertainment of the big conference are J. D. Eggleston, supervisor of rural schools for the United States Bureau of Education; Mrs. B. B. Munford, president of the Co-operative Education Association of Virginia; R. C. Stearnes, Superintendent of Public Instruction; Jackson Davis, State supervisor of rural elementary schools; Julian A. Burruss, School and Industrial School for Women at Harrisonburg and president of the Virginia State Teachers' Association; and Dr. H. B. Frisell, president of the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute.

A program that will bring to Richmond the leading educators of the country is being arranged.

House Ratifies Amendment.

Trenton, N. J., January 27.—The New Jersey House to-night ratified the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States authorizing Congress to levy an income tax. Republican members opposed the bill.

SHOE SCHEDULE IS LOW ENOUGH

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Lynchburg, Va., January 27.—John W. Craddock, the head of the Craddock-Terry Company, left to-night for Washington, to appear to-morrow before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives to oppose a reduction in the tariff on shoes or a removal of the present duty.

Mr. Craddock goes to Washington to represent the National Shoe Manufacturers' Association, and the National Shoe Manufacturers' Association. He stated to-day that when the last revision of the shoe schedule was under consideration that the shoe manufacturers voluntarily appeared before the Ways and Means Committee and advocated a reduction of from 25 to 10 per cent, but now the same interests would oppose a further reduction or removal of the duty because they felt that the duty was already low enough, and lower than on any other manufactured product in which skilled labor is needed in its manufacture.

Rev. W. E. Powell, who recently resigned the pastorate of the Park View Christian Church, has gone to Florida, where he expects to engage in farming, though he will occasionally conduct evangelistic meetings in that section. Mr. Powell reluctantly gave up his work in the West End, being compelled to do so on account of the health of his wife.

J. D. Gates, who was caught in the act of robbing a man at the Danville fair last October, was tried to-day in the Police Court here and given two months in jail on the charge of picking the pocket of E. R. Goodman here during the fair in October. Gates served three months in Danville jail. When arrested he had several rare coins in his possession, which Mr. Goodman identified as having been taken from him. After doing time in Danville he was turned over to the police here.

Bettie Ridd, colored, who stabbed Lucian Brown, also colored, to death Saturday afternoon in a fit of jealousy, was captured Sunday morning by the local police in Amherst County.

The Lynchburg W. C. T. U. is arranging for a reception to be given here in February to Mrs. Howard M. Hoge, the State president, who is to be here to-day on a temperance conference.

H. E. Graves, a well-known resident, who fell into an elevator shaft Thursday at a local shoe factory, is improving and has chances to recovery if complications do not set in.

A. W. Harned, organist at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, will conduct a party to New York next week to see the Metropolitan Opera Company, the party leaving here next Sunday evening. In the company will be Misses Mary Appleton, Emily Amble, Kate Edmunds, Mary Watts, Mary Cheatewood, Rosa Busey, Maude Caskey, and Sue Adams; Mesdames E. C. Ivey, Clinton DeWitt, Jr., Bessie McCarthy, W. B. Ryan, C. W. Good, Don P. Halsey, S. H. Franklin, and Stephen Mundy; C. R. Weber, W. B. Ryan and A. W. Harned.

The following residents of Roanoke are expected to accompany the party: Misses Kate Stone, Blanche Beal and Corinne Lockett and George Shield.

What Does L. B. Mean?

It means Library Bureau. It also means Less Bother.

In a way, the name Library Bureau is a misnomer. It does not fully tell our business story. True, we do make things used in libraries, but we don't make bureaux.

This business is built on the use of the Card as an office convenience, an office help, an efficient—because simplified—form of office record. These are some of the things we make in card form:

Stock Records, Sales Records, Card Ledgers, Quotation Records, Credit Lists, Purchase Records, Mailing Lists, Indexes, Advertising Records, Bank Records, Insurance Records, Brokers' Records.

We ask to be allowed to figure on your next order—to show you that we should get your order on the ground of better SERVICE.

We have seven factories devoted to the manufacture of cards, files and office equipment. Our business is much the largest of its kind in the world. Why?
